

Body Broken

by FI. Goldhaber

Body Broken

(a Fibonacci)

I
stare
at the
thermostat,
trying to convince
myself I should stop shivering.

But,
long
ago
I lost all connection between
my body and ambient temps.

I
will quiver
at eighty,
strip and perspire when others add jackets, hats, and gloves.

FI. Goldhaber's words capture people, places, and politics with a photographer's eye and a poet's soul. As a reporter, editor, business writer, and marketing communications consultant, they produced news stories, feature articles, editorial columns, and reviews for newspapers, corporations, governments, and non-profits in five states. Now paper, plastic, electronic, and audio magazines, books, newspapers, calendars, broadsides, and street signs display their poetry, fiction, and essays. Left Fork press published What Color is Your Privilege? -- a collection of political statements in poetic form -- in September.

<http://www.goldhaber.net/>